Craig: I haven't seen you around. Where have you been?

Natalie: I've been on training at 2 places in a row. One in Bangkok and one in Jakarta.

Craig: How long have you been away?

Natalie: For a week.

Craig: What do they do in the financial offices there? Natalie: Oh well, they do lot of different things. They have a lot of paperwork. The records of all the company's transactions are kept on the computer. The accountant's work is to keep a running audit budget.

Craig: That doesn't sound very interesting. Then, you might not have heard the news. Daniel finally got promoted as a sales manager.

Natalie: That's wonderful! What about Connie? What's happening to her? Is she getting promoted?

Craig: She's getting transferred. She is going to be head of our new office in Hanoi.

Natalie: The new office in Hanoi! They'd been talking about it.

Craig: We're being awarded that contract to export furniture to Hanoi. So they have decided it's time.

Natalie: That's such good news too. She is lucky. Hanoi is such a beautiful city. I wouldn't mind living there myself.

Craig: Does that mean you're going to apply for a transfer?

Natalie: Oh no, I don't think so. I like it here, and I'm comfortable here.
